REMARKS MEN ON SERVICE

D FILE 32 -- 5 JULY 1944

The Division secured all of the area within its zone of action, mopping up all remaining pockets of enemy resistance, consolidating defensive positions and maintaining contact with the adjacent units in their advance to pinch off the Div. Cor. Corps orders restrained the Division from further advances. Defensive positions were established along the general line from Hill 131 north along the ST. SAUVEUR LE VIOUX - LA HAYE DU FUITS Highway to the southern slopes of Hill 95 and thence along the southern slope of the LA POTERIE Ridge.

124th Glider Infantry Regiment

The regiment established a defensive line on the forward slopes of the LA POTERIE Ridge with the 3d Battalion, 507th Parachute Infantry, attached, on the regiment's right flank. Contact was maintained with the advancing 90th Infantry Division on the left.

RESTRICTED

On 5 July, as the attack moved into La Poterie, the Germans mounted a counterattack with a tank accompanied by a force of infantry. This force, moving along a narrow road, was gaining ground against the under-strength riflemen of the 325. Pfc James Geach, serving with the Heavy Weapons Company, 1st Battalion, took action on his own initiative.
